Innovation & Research Award 2025

This award recognises the significant amount of professional work that is carried out at investigatory and trial stages of projects in industry, or through philanthropic activities. Your submission should detail how your research, innovative trial or product stands as an exemplary piece of work and how it contributes to the betterment of the Highways and Transportation industry.

This is a broad topic, and the subjects are likely to be diverse, but we welcome the opportunity to recognise the professional contribution to society from our members whilst carrying out research and testing new innovations.

This award looks to recognise an outstanding piece of research, innovation or product in the highways and transportation sector which looks to improve the industry by addressing a specific problem. The project or product should have outlined clear targets, with structured methods and be a unique piece of work that has been well communicated to the wider sector.
